

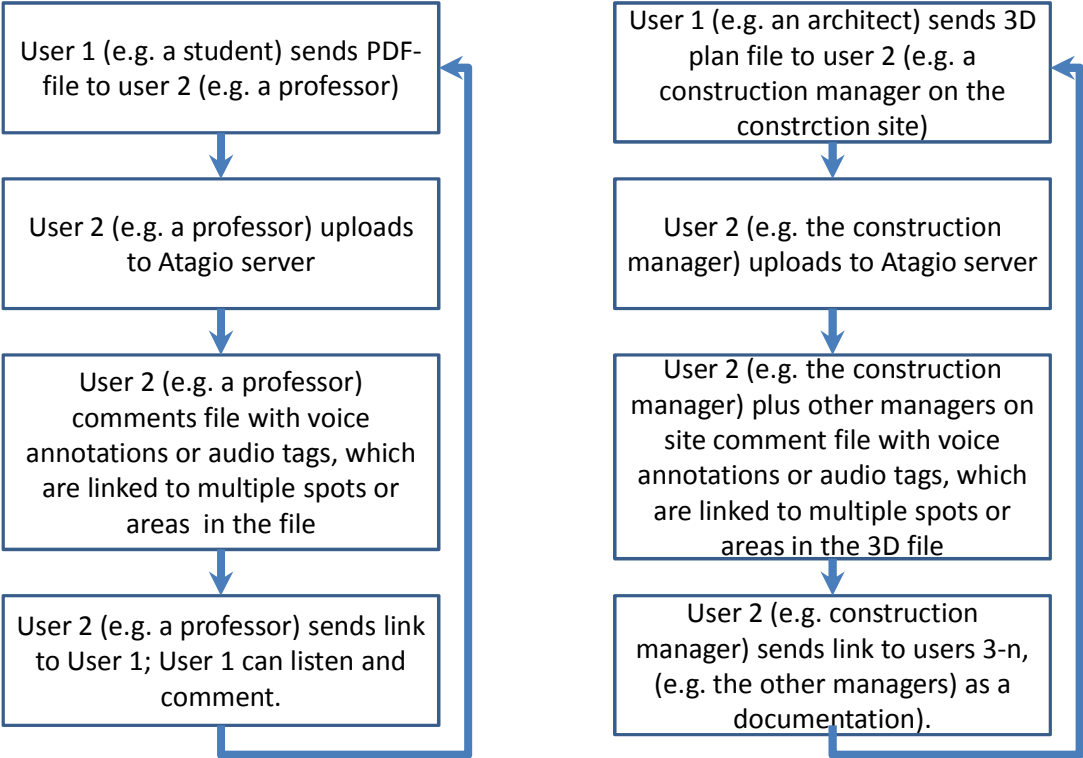

Fig. 2 Example structures of creation and sharing of integrated file

The figure shows two examples of the creation of such integrated files. The invention is not limited to these examples but can handle similar proceedings. The uniqueness of the described invention lies in the creation of integrated files which enable sharing of one file and not several files (also known as attachments).